- Why might those traits be valued where he grew up?
One of Bill Withers’ most famous songs is “Lean on Me.” It was recorded in 1972, and inspired by the mining community where he grew up.

Listen to the song and read the lyrics here.
Consider or ask a friend:

• How might the message of “Lean on Me” be important to coal mining communities?

• What might the phrase “Lean on Me” mean in this song?

• In what ways might the message of the song be important to communities outside of Withers’? Can you think of a specific example of a community that might value the song’s message?
Since it was written, “Lean on Me” has become an anthem to community support.

On January 20, 2009, people throughout the United States came to see Barack Obama’s Inauguration Ceremony. Around 4,000 people got caught in a tunnel and could not get to the ceremony.

• In what other situations might singing “Lean on Me” be helpful or appropriate?
Bill Withers died of cardiovascular disease on March 30th, 2020, in the midst of the coronavirus pandemic.

On April 18th, Stevie Wonder performed “Lean on Me” during the Together at Home televised concert, which raised money for healthcare workers during the Coronavirus.

Consider or ask a friend:

• In what ways might “Lean on Me” be an appropriate song during the coronavirus pandemic?

• The Together at Home event was held for healthcare workers, but they are not the only group of people risking their health to respond to the Coronavirus pandemic. Who else could be considered a helper during the pandemic?

• What sorts of people do you “lean on” to stay fed, healthy, clean, and safe?
Bill Withers was born in a mining community in West Virginia, and went on to become one of the most cherished songwriters in American history. Withers’ song “Lean on Me” was inspired by the close-knit mining community in which he was raised, and since has become an anthem for mutual care and community. During times of crisis, “Lean on Me” is one way many people express gratitude to the front line workers and helpers that protect our communities.
Identify a person or group of people you might “lean on” during the Coronavirus pandemic. Examples might include healthcare professionals, grocery clerks and stockers, delivery people, sanitation workers, public transit employees, or teachers.
Use chalk to write a thank you message to the person you’ve chosen, somewhere they might see it. For instance, write a note to delivery people at the front of your home or building, or a note to sanitation workers where trash pickup occurs.

Also consider writing a friendly letter to the person you chose, thanking them for the work they do for your community. See this link for advice on writing the letter. We’d love you to share the letter with the world as well, see the “Connect” slide for instructions.
Many cities across the country are thanking frontline workers everyday at 7PM by cheering, making noise, or singing out their windows. With friends and family, sing “Lean on Me” during this time. See who in the community might join you!

Using these instructions, conduct a virtual or in-person Gratitude Circle with family and/or friends, as a way to reflect on what you are grateful for.
